Sharecare and National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, New York Chapter - renowned for the annual Emmy Awards - announce winners of 2022 Sharecare Awards

November 4, 2022

ATLANTA, Nov. 4, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Sharecare (Nasdaq: SHCR), the digital health company that helps people manage all their health in one place, announced the complete list of winners of the 2022 Sharecare Awards. Held in association with the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, New York Chapter – which inspires artistic and technical excellence through the renowned Emmy® Award – the Sharecare Awards recognize the year's best digital campaigns and content that promote health and well-being and embody the spirit of "sharing care."

The fourth annual Sharecare Awards honored winners across categories that represent the diversity of experiences shaping consumers' health and lives today. Winners were revealed and celebrated in a month-long social media campaign featuring health and well-being influencers and celebrity advocates, including: actress and comedian Yvette Nicole Brown; principal dancer with the American Ballet Theater Misty Copeland; influencer and reality television star Heidi D'Amelio; CNN chief medical correspondent Dr. Sanjay Gupta; talk show host Tamron Hall; Olympic gold medalist Scott Hamilton; Emmy, Grammy, Oscar, and Tony award-winning actress Rita Moreno; Special Olympics chairman Timothy Shriver; veteran broadcast journalist Meredith Viera; and television host, actor, and motivational speaker Montel Williams, among others.

"Engaging people in their health is of the utmost importance to Sharecare, and ultimately that's what drove us to launch the Sharecare Awards and elevate the impactful work produced by these world-class advocates and content creators," said Donna Hill Howes, chief nursing officer and senior vice president of corporate partnerships at Sharecare. "This year's honorees tackled some of the most critically important issues impacting humanity today – from health equity and pandemic response to innovation and mental health – and we applaud their commitment to education, awareness, and inspired action."
